About

the History Trust of South Australia

The History Trust of South Australia operates three museums – the Migration Museum, the National Motor Museum and the South Australian Maritime Museum. Complementing those established museums is The Centre of Democracy.

In support of South Australia's history network of committed volunteer associations and local history specialists, we manage a Community Museums Program and offer annual grants for research and writing to promote the value of history and our place in the world. Every year we present South Australia's History Festival – a state-wide celebration of community history, collections and heritage. We present great community events such as the Bay to Birdwood historic vehicle run, public programs and other events, festivals and celebrations on South Australia's cultural calendar.

Acknowledgement

of Traditional Owners

The History Trust of South Australia respects the primary place of First Nations peoples in our history. We acknowledge that this story commenced long before Governor Hindmarsh proclaimed the establishment of government in the province of South Australia on 28 December 1836. First Nations peoples have a history that extends millennia into the past. We acknowledge that First Nations lands and sovereignty were not recognised, and that building a shared understanding of history is critical to reconciliation. And we affirm our role in reconciliation as an essential part of First Nations and non-First Nations South Australians co-creating a positive future.

The History Trust is a history organisation, and recognises the legacy of the past in the present; that the impacts of the colonisation of South Australia are ongoing. We commit to the process of truth-telling called for in the Uluru Statement from the Heart, working with First Nations Peoples to shine a light on our difficult, shared histories in order to create a better future.

➤ WE RECOGNISE

that history is a complex tapestry woven of many stories, some incomplete, that capture people and their times and place – including what is happening now.

➤ WE ENGAGE

and serve local and global audiences using a digital-first approach.

➤ WE CELEBRATE

diversity in all its many aspects.

➤ WE RESEARCH

collect, preserve, and share material culture and document our non-material culture to better understand the past and the present.

➤ WE RESPECT

the dignity of every person, alive or deceased. We treat colleagues and the public with respect, demonstrating this through the highest standards of service, professionalism, honesty, and integrity.

OUR VISION

GIVING THE PAST A FUTURE NOW!

We are a renewed and contemporary History Trust of South Australia. Our agenda is inclusive and adventurous. We remain as proudly expert and professional as we are accessible and open. We are an active partner in creating a positive future informed by our unique identity.

Our museums are welcoming and adaptable – social places where visitors of all ages, backgrounds, purposes and abilities know their community is included and their stories valued. They are places where visitors don't have to whisper, and can be confident that their experience has integrity.

We will celebrate the ordinary as well as the extraordinary, relying on our excellent and extensive research.

We will take the collection out of the store, creating and presenting events and exhibitions that inspire curiosity for locals and for visitors alike. These will ignite spontaneous conversations between strangers and provide excitement for school-age children. We will explain how the connectedness between South Australians and the world has been shaped by our history.

South Australia's unique history should be an essential part of what all South Australians and our visitors can experience. It explains our society and the way it works, and how this feeds into the giant story of human endeavour across our world.

We are dedicated to giving our special past a future.

Work Experience at the History Trust of South Australia

Work experience at the History Trust of South Australia will see students rotate through placements at multiple sites including our head office and at each of our museums. Each of these sites will provide students with multiple opportunities to explore different careers and practise different skills needed to work within the galleries and museums sector.

Students will work alongside a small intake of other high school students and will work together to complete a project by the week's end. The development of soft skills such as communication, collaboration, creative, and critical thinking skills is an important part of the learning experience and students will be expected to embrace opportunities to practise these skills.

A Typical Week

A typical week will see students placed at different sites and working across many teams. The program takes place over four days and ends in a presentation on Thursday afternoon. A fifth day may be available for students who need or want to take part in a 5-day placement. The fifth day may occur at locations which offer unique opportunities but are hard to access via public transport.
